

Greg Peters, Chairman & Chief Executive Officer

Greg Peters is the Founder, Chairman and CEO of News Distribution Network, Inc. (NDN). NDN's centralized, multimedia-serving platform enables the broad distribution of news, business, finance, entertainment and sports content for the online newspaper, magazine and radio markets. NDN's platform eliminates significant infrastructure and operating costs while enabling revenue growth. NDN's partners include Reuters, CBS, TMZ, Bloomberg, Comcast (E! Entertainment), TV Guide, Westwood One, Hearst, Tribune, Cox, Gatehouse Media, Weather Channel, Meredith, U.S. News, Boston Globe, Washington Post, Philadelphia Enquirer, Cumulus Media, Travel Channel, Advance Internet, Chicago Sun-Times Group, and others. Mr. Peters brings 24 years of experience in the technology community and international business expertise to his latest venture.

Mr. Peters was appointed by President George W. Bush to the National Infrastructure Advisory Council (NIAC), a White House Committee, in 2004. The NIAC advises the President on national security issues related to cyber security and protection of our national infrastructure. The NIAC works closely with the Department of Homeland Security and White House security and intelligence advisors. Mr. Peters' appointment continues under President Barack Obama, as he serves at the discretion of the sitting President.

Mr. Peters served as the President, CEO, and Board Member of Internap Network Services Corporation (NASDAQ: INAP) from 2002 to 2005. In this role he directed a restructuring effort, which resulted in achieving positive cash flow, sustained annual revenue growth, a 22x market cap increase, a doubling of customers and a tripling of gross margins.

Previously, Mr. Peters was Founder, President, CEO and Board Member of Mahi Networks where he built and managed the company from inception to market delivery. In the 1990s, Mr. Peters was Vice President of International Operations for Advanced Fibre Communications (NASDAQ: TLAB) and Adtran (NASDAQ: ADTN), where he led global expansion to over 40 countries.

For nearly a decade, he held increasingly senior positions at AT&T Network Systems, the last being Managing Director of the Middle East and Africa, headquartered in Cairo, Egypt. Mr. Peters conducted business for AT&T in over 60 countries and was responsible for directing the telecommunications recovery and reconstruction efforts in the Persian Gulf Region during and after the Gulf War. To date, Mr. Peters has conducted business in 85 countries.

Mr. Peters has served on the alumni board of the Terry School of Business at the University of Georgia, the Technology Association of Georgia Board, the Georgia Chamber of Commerce Board, and the Advisory Board of the Metro Atlanta Chamber of Commerce as well as the boards of several growth stage companies.

Mr. Peters earned a Bachelor of Business Administration in Finance and Accounting from the University of Georgia and a Master of Business Administration in International Management from the American Graduate School of International Management, Thunderbird Campus, in Glendale, Arizona. Mr. Peters has continued his educational efforts in executive programs at Harvard, Stanford and Columbia Universities.

Mr. Peters has lectured on International Business, Technology, & Entrepreneurship at Thunderbird and Sonoma State University and is currently a visiting lecturer at the University of Georgia Terry School of Business MBA program and various undergraduate programs. Mr. Peters also mentors development stage companies at the Advanced Technology Development Center at Georgia Tech.
